

Disabled Sports Eastern Sierra seeks an energetic, recreation enthusiast to join our program staff as a Summer Instructor. Summer Instructors are responsible for planning and teaching adaptive lessons in mountain biking, cycling, rock climbing, flatwater paddling, and more. They work closely with athletes with disabilities and their families and caregivers to provide lessons designed to meet each student's goals and ensure safe, fun, and rewarding experiences. Lessons are most often conducted in one-on-one sessions and sometimes in group settings during half day, full day, and multi-day programs. In addition to providing high quality experiences to athletes with disabilities, instructors assist with events, equipment maintenance, and administrative duties such as program planning and logistics, athlete/volunteer outreach, and daily scheduling. Instructors also participate in training clinics focused on different sports, disabilities, and adaptive equipment, and aid in training volunteers as appropriate. Travel and transport of equipment is required between program sites.
